This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1911 edition. Excerpt: ...Volume 57 AUGUST, 1912 Number 8 Through West Indian Seas THE Rev. J. D. Ramu makes his first report of colportage to the readers of the Record. A recent popular novel by a brilliant American woman lays the first scene in the little town of Basse-Terre, the capital of Guadaloupe, where Mrs. Atherton pictures "gay society" in the West Indies. It is a strange contrast which one feels in reading Mr. Ramu's account of his visit to the same places; but the colporteur, though little known to fame, touches by his Bible distribution deeper springs of life and happiness. Having been called by the Rev. W. F. Jordan to colportage work in the section of the West Indies under his direction, I left Ponce September 11, 1911, and having received adequate instructions and the necessary books, sailed on the 18th for the French island of Guadaloupe, arriving at Pointe a Pitre at ten o'clock on the night of the 20th. Early on the morning of the 21st I directed my steps to the custom house in order to clear my books and begin work, and by ten o'clock of the same day had them in my room in the hotel. I then went out in search of Louis Themar. Finding him, I brought him to the hotel, and after a short conversation, I agreed to employ him during my stay. We immediately began work, and noted the marvelous fact that the people ran after us, IN THE MARKET AT BASSE-TERRE importuning us for the Word of God. Although, truly, many have a kind of superstitious reverence for the Book and others hope to use it to their own profit in divining the future--an idea which, of course, we did our best to eradicate--yet many bought it desiring to know the will of God and his revelation to fallen man. After having spent some days in Pointe a Pitre I made out an itinerary...
